Albert Nobbs (Rodrigo García, 2011) The tale of a woman (Glenn Close) forced to live as a man in 19th Century Ireland. After thirty years of keeping up the charade, a new love threatens to destroy everything she's worked so hard to build.

“A brave performance by Close” Chicago Sun-Times

Moonrise Kingdom (Wes Anderson, 2012) New England, 1965: two twelve-year-olds fall in love, make a secret pact and run away together into the wilderness pursued by the authorities. Quirky comedy starring Bruce Willis, Ed Norton, Bill Murray, Frances McDormand and Tilda Swinton.

“Funny, bittersweet and distinct” Empire

Tortoise In Love (Guy Browning, 2012) Tom (Tom Mitchelson), gardener at the big house, can talk to plants but not to women. When beautiful Polish au pair Anya (Alice Zawadzki) arrives for the summer, Tom is smitten, but at a total loss on how to proceed. Fortunately – or unfortunately - there is no shortage of people in the village willing to lend a hand. Small but delightfully formed British romcom made with the help of an entire village.

Prometheus (Ridley Scott, 2012) In the distant future, a team of explorers travels to a distant world in search of the origin of mankind but what they find may lead to its destruction. Much anticipated return of Ridley Scott to the ‘Alien’ franchise he created, starring Noomi Rapace, Michael Fassbender, Charlize Theron and Guy Pearce.

“Majestic to look at in every way” Telegraph

The Angels' Share (Ken Loach, 2012) Narrowly avoiding jail, new dad Robbie (Paul Brannigan) vows to turn over a new leaf. A visit to a whisky distillery inspires him and his mates to seek a way out of their hopeless lives by turning to drink.
"British comedy at its warmest and most pleasurable"
Telegraph

 Men In Black 3 (Barry Sonnenfeld, 2012) When Agent K (Tommy Lee Jones) is killed by a time travelling alien gangster, Agent J (Will Smith) is forced to go back in time to try to save Agent K's younger self (Josh Brolin).
"Cheery, sunny and nifty-looking" Telegraph
